

Letter from the President

The history of SAMP and its brands has always been eventful. Gradually we have grown to become one of the largest gear and screw production equipment suppliers and one of the top wire and cable equipment manufacturers in the world.

Continuity is very important to us; starting out from a small workshop, our values have always reflected the way in which we run our business. An ethical approach in dealing with customers, partners and employees; initiative and determination in supplying the best technology around; and constant investment into research and development have always been foremost in our mission.

Innovative vision, however, is fundamental in today's industrial world. At SAMP we see ourselves as a company that is always open to change and new ideas. Our business is a continuous learning process in which we strive to develop new and innovative solutions that enable our customers to get to the top in their own sectors and maintain a leading position.

We aim at innovating the most efficient manufacturing processes. We focus on minimizing auxiliary times, maximizing equipment availability while realizing savings on expensive raw materials and running costs. Thus, as we look forward and adapt to better serve you as a customer, we also look back and take pride in those values, which have enabled SAMP to become a global player, values which will accompany us into the future as we work to make your business a success.

Thank you for your trust.

Antonio Maccaferri
President of the SAMP Group
